Senior project paints healthy picture

Friday, March 13, 2009

"The mural" said James Coffee, chief executive officer of Coastal Family Health Center "is really a work of art that helps brighten the waiting room, breaking up the often drab walls of the doctor's office."

"It took several months of painting on Saturdays to complete the mural" Coffee said, "but it was well worth the wait."
